

Red Roses

She was out of sight, out of range,
And she walked in the wind, into the pouring rain!
It was just a game, but it's all the same,
And he makes it too fast, so she forgot the name.

There were several reasons for giving up,
And plenty of rooms at the Hotel of Luck!
So she carried on, all alone,
'Cause what's the purpose, if they are all gone?

I love you now,
And your mouth, Will you kiss me tonight?
Oh please, this is too long ...
Next time, I'll just be singing my song, all right ...

She was the reason for living of many men,
And though she did know it, she would stick to her sane.
So she starred up, and we stranded out,
All the sunset of hope brings so many doubts ...

And day by day, cares fade away,
Since the empty dreams are not to stay!
What the hell the sky needs to come alive,
And the day after, to swallow our pride!

I love you now,
And your eyes, Oh! When you do look at me!
Oh love, it takes too long ...
Next time, I'll just be singing my song, all right ...